

WHP takes the Southern Manufacturing temperature

Oxfordshire-based Injection moulding innovator White Horse Plastics (WHP) took time out this month to visit the UK's Southern Manufacturing Exhibition in Farnborough.

Paul Bobby and Colin Voller of WHP toured the show – in its new location – meeting contacts old and new and also attending some of the seminar presentations.

Paul said that 'it's always difficult to leave the factory gate behind, but once inside the exhibition environment there's never any regret about being present.

White Horse made several valuable new contacts – in terms of suppliers and customers – as well as catching up with the company's existing network and learning about trends that are set to impact the general industrial landscape this year.

WHP also took time to liaise with its equipment partners such as Wittmann Battenfeld (WIBA) UK, supplier of injection moulding machines, automation and ancillary equipment.
