

New-look White Horse Plastics ready for 2020 business

White Horse Plastics (WHP) returns for the third time to the 2020 Southern Manufacturing exhibition, led by an MBO team that has landed recent successes in manufacturing solutions at home and abroad.

WHP Managing Director Paul Bobby says that 'WHP will be offering our Farnborough visitors everything on the spectrum of product design and tooling, right through to manufacturing, assembly, packing and shipping.'

WHP's signature strength in technical injection moulding has this year seen the business prosper in the quality-conscious markets of medical, healthcare and automotive as well as helping inventors realise products for consumer markets.

The WHP team has also this year exported its considerable injection moulding know-how to support one of their first tier automotive customers in Central Europe; helping them design, commission and run a completely new injection moulding cell within their own manufacturing facility.

Paul Bobby says that 'we are delighted to deploy our engineering services and skills wherever we can in the world. Helping other companies establish and run injection moulding plants of their own is not only good business for WHP but is also a compliment and testimonial to the workforce that we have here.'

Another benefit in sourcing with WHP concerns quality assurance: In addition to the medical manufacturing standard EN ISO 13485:2016, WHP also holds the universal quality management system ISO 9001:2015, the environmental standard ISO 14001:2015 and the automotive quality standard IATF 16949:2016.

Bobby adds that 'Southern Manufacturing has always opened a number of doors for us: We look forward to enthusing our 2020 visitors – specifiers, buyers, outsourcers - with bold and imaginative manufacturing ideas – then following through with solutions in a cost-effective and value-added manner.'
